She was very poor, and obliged to obtain work wherever she could find any, and sustained herself in this way. She was about thirty-five years of age, and represented that she had been twice married, both husbands alive and at presentlying in Cincinnati. Her mother, previous to her death, had also lived in Cincinnati. The woman was addicted to drinking, and was also a confirmed oplum-cater, and consumed ten cents' worth of the drug each day.

About four o'clock Saturday evening she left for Lawrenceburg, walking out of town on the railroad track. That was the last seen of her until the ghastly spectacle of Sanday morning. It is thought by some that she returned to Aurora and procured whisky or optum and attempted to waik to Lawrenceburg later in the evening in an intoxicated condition and was run down and killed by one of the evening trains.

To H. H. Jones, City Clerk, Hamilton,

To H. H. Jones, City Clerk, Hamilton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR: I presented the matter of the cutting off of the Hamilton Basin, to our people at their meeting a week ago, and the matter was referred to our Executive Committee, consisting of Col. Manypenny, John Joyce, and myself, all of whom reside in this city, to confer with the authorities of Hamilton, if they desired to see us, with power to act. I doubt whether anything would result from a conference, as the views of your people and our company are so diverse as to the desirability of cutting off the Basin, as to probable or positive damages which would result to us from the act, but if you desire to see us we will be here on Tuesday, Oct. 5th, or such tuture time as we may agree on.

Yours Truly,

Yours Truly, Chas. Parrott, General Agent

On motion it was received. COVINGTON. - Two horses at the Sixth-street hose house are sick with the epizootic. A pistol-shot was fired last night in Van Gundy's beer saloon on Madison street, near Seventh, and drew quite a crowd. The gas in the saloon was quickly turned off, and public curiosity as to the cause remains unsatisfied.

In the Mayor's Court Anten Holma, for being drunk, was fined $4, including cost; Mahala Telbott and Eveline Smoot upon the charge of disorderly conduct. The former was let off by paying costs and the latter was dismissed; Etiza Pate, same charge, dismissed; Basney Ronker, for selling liquor to Mary Burns, a known inetriate, was fined $25; George Turner, for a breach of the peace, was fined $25 and costs.

The epizootic has appeared in a very mild form among the horses belonging to the Covington Transier Company. It is not thought that our city will be visited with the disease in the form of an epidemic.

NEWPORT.-The harness which was stolen from the stable of Messrs. Goeble and Buening last Sunday, as mentioned yesterday, was bought by Messrs. Freith A Hook for $2. The thief was of welluressed exterior, and, at the time he made the burgain with Mr. Hook, stated that he had broken down upon the road and was compelled to sell so as to be pable to get home. The harness has been Carris came into the Police Court this morning dressed in a huge breastpin representing one of Raphael's angels. She danced up to the stand and boldly swore that she slapped Hannah in her little mouth because she called her a bad name. She says Hannah is jealous of her on account of Godey Martin. Judge Lindemah fined Carrie $1 and costs, which brought down her high spirits slightly. Carrie had no money to pay her fine, when her attorney generously offered her an advance of three cabbage leaves.

The October term of the Superior The October term of the Superior Court has opened. The city has brought a suit against W. S. Forbus to recover $3,000 for rent of a wharf extending from Coonnower's west line to Milloreek. The wharf was leased to John Graham & Co., who assigned it to Forbus. He has paid $4,000, the rent being $2,000 per year, and now refuses to pay any more.

The joint session of the June term Common Pleas was opened yesterday, but adjourned without transacting any business.

As announced by the STAR yesterday the epizootic is appearing in different parts of the city, and now seems to be rapidly spreading over the entire city, and it now seems likely that the disease will prove as general as on the former occasion. Thus far, however, no cases have proved fatal, and it is generally believed that the disease will be less dangerous, and will not so seriously affect business as formerly.

A STAR reporter visited all of the stables of the principal car lines of this city and Covington this morning to make inquiries regarding the spread of this great horse plague. At the Walnut Hills stable they are feeding at present 115 horses, cut of which number there is scarcely one that is not coughing or showing unmistakable signs of the disease. Only two or three, however, are manufactured.

showing unmistakable signs of the disease. Only two or three, however, are unable to work.

At the Mt. Auburn stables there are about 24 horses, all of which are coughing, 12 being unable to work at all.

At the stables of the Seventh-street line there are about 160 horses all affected, but only a few down.

At the Futton stables, out of 210 horses nearly all show signs of the disease; none down as yet.

At the Third-street stables 110 horses all coughing; three or four down.

At the Third-street stables 110 horses all coughing; three or four down.

At the Central avenue and John-street line about 115 horses all coughing and running at the nose; four or five down.

In Covington and Newport, however, there is not a single horse sick at any of the car stables, but some are reported affected in other parts of Covington.

The disease is spreading rapidly, however, and many fear that it will be as general as upon its first visit.

THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH.

What Mr. Covingian Thinks About It. Hon. S. F. Covington to-day submitted his riews on the National Postal Telegraph question to the Chamber of Commerce in printer form. Owing to its length we are unable to form. Owing to its length we are unable to give more than an abstract of the argument with brief extracts, which will, however, serve to show the value and interest of the address and the thorough and intelligent manner in which thosubject is treated.

The leading idea, says Mr. Covington, in the inception of the telegraph was that it should become a part of the postal system of the courty. Congress held that idea when it mads the appropriated of $30,000 to build the first line between Washington and Ballimore, and by resolution called upon the Postmaster General at that the terreport them its feasibility. The constitution called upon the Postmaster General at that the terreport them its feasibility. The constitution will be remembered as having opposed postage referm and retarded its adoption, led nint to report has the did not think that in fishien imperfect condition its receipts would equal its expenditures; and that the grand discovery, which should have been held for the beacht of the people, fell into the Bants of a monopoly.

stee Cambon by that exapons. The Chamber pays for those reports, at a commuted rate, it is true, but more than it would pay if deverament had the telegraph. The chamber pays for those reports, at a commuted rate, it is true, but more than it would pay if deverament had the telegraph is the pear by each membra of the property of the pear by each membra of the property of the pear by each membra of the property of the pear by each membra of the property of the pear by each membra of the property of the pear by each membra of the property of the pear by each membra from repearing them; and thus, when the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company, thore to pear by the pear of the western Union Telegraph Company, thore of the western Union Telegraph Company, choose of this chamber, it may do so, or the Chamber will be deprived of the narket reports.

It is greatly to the credit of Start the that while not in any wise consecting the right of the Chamber of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company to forbid its publication of those reports, it discontinued publishing them. It did that the sake of harmony and to save the Chart has each of harmony and to save the Chart has each of harmony and to save the Chart has probably more money expended for special telegrams by the press of this city than that of any other city in the country. Expended for special telegrams by the press of this city than that of any other city in the country. Expended for special telegrams by the press of this city than that of any other city in the country. Expended for special type that almost all the valuable information published in the telegraphic columns of our daily papers is contained in what is known as "specials;" and these specials come from every section of the country, and embrace-every variety of subject.
